Beatitude Through Being Burdened

I do not mean to be negative but all the points in Jesus' teaching of the Beatitudes in Matthew's Gospel this Sunday would not really sell a lot of books in the Self-Help section of McNally-Robinson.

People who are Poor in Spirit, mourners, meek, hungry for righteousness, merciful, clean of heart, peacemakers, persecuted, and insulted hardly seem ones to rejoice and be glad in this world of ours.

It seems that if you set out to live like any of these folks the result would not be beatitude but being burdened.

However, we must recognize that when Jesus teaches these on the Mount, we are meeting the new Moses giving Ten Beatitudes that fulfill the Ten Commandments. For those of us who are followers of the new Moses, and who are destined by Baptism for ultimate Beatitude, the joy of the Beatific Vision in Heaven, these Beatitudes are of first order importance in our lives – an even more important guidepost than the Ten Commandments.

No, the Ten Commandments are not abrogated. A few passages later we hear our Lord saying, “Do not think that I have come to abolish the Law or the Prophets; I have come not to abolish but to fulfill.” (Mt.5:17). But you and I live in Christ who is the fulfillment of the Law. Ours is not only the wisdom of God on Sinai, ours is the Wisdom of God made flesh in Christ Jesus, “who became for us wisdom from God, and righteousness and sanctification and redemption, in order that, as it is written, “Let the one who boasts, boast in the Lord.”” (1 Cor. 1:30-31)

We who are in Christ Jesus do not measure ourselves by the Ten Commandments of Sinai alone, our measure is Christ Jesus Himself. And He measures us by our Beatitude, He sees us through how we live in Him. And to live in Him in this world is, like Him, to find our Beatitude in the form being burdened.

Let me give an example. “Blessed are those who mourn, for they will be comforted.” Where is happiness and joy in mourning? Well, I am grieving my mother now and it is a strange burden that comes in waves. Yet, there is beatitude in bearing this burden of grief because the grief is completely in proportion to the love that was mine with my mother. That love is beatitude because to love someone is to bear them as a “burden”, to care, to be affected by, to rejoice with them. Love is always beatitude that strengthens, that “comforts.”

Even more, when grief is shared with others in Christian mourning of a people willing to be burdened by the grief of another, is experienced in Christ Jesus who has won for us eternal life, Beatitude Itself.

So a couple of questions. Do you know by heart the Beatitudes? Have you ever used them as an Examination of Conscience at the end of the day or before the Sacrament of Reconciliation?

That allowing ourselves to live burdened by others brings happiness is indeed foolish in worldly eyes.

“But God chose what is foolish in the world to shame the wise; God chose what is weak in the world to shame the strong; God chose what is low and despised in the world, things that are not, to abolish things that are.” (1 Cor. 1:27-28)
